

JENNIFER L. BERGER, MSW

Jennifer L. Berger is Chief of the Social Justice Section, Public Advocacy Division, of the Office of the Attorney General for the District of Columbia, which enforces the rights of tenants and workers to safe housing and proper wages. For thirteen years, Jen supervised the interdisciplinary eviction prevention team at AARP Legal Counsel for the Elderly, which included both affirmative and defensive litigation and Superior Court, Civil Division and Probate Division committee work. Jen previously supervised the housing team at The Legal Aid Society of the District of Columbia and was a general civil attorney at the Legal Aid Bureau of Maryland. Jen is the 2016 recipient of the Jerrold Scoutt prize for public interest advocacy. She is a frequent local and national presenter on housing issues.
