Day-Two

Client Relations

Marketing

Productivity & Technology

Who is your ideal client?

- Why good client choice is vital
- What are the characteristics of your ideal client?
- Where are they & how do you talk to them?

Clients

Identify your targeted clients, their characteristics, and their geographic locations, otherwise known as their demographics.

You may have more than one client group. Identify the most important groups. Then, for each client group, construct what is called a demographic profile:

- Age
- Gender
- Location
- Income level
- Social class and occupation
- Education
- Other (specific to your industry)
- Other (specific to your industry)

For commercial clients, the demographic factors might be:

- Industry (or portion of an industry)
- Location
- Size of firm
- Quality, technology, and price preferences
- Other (specific to your industry)
- Other (specific to your industry)

We are licensed to solve the problems of others for a fee

LAW IS A RELATIONSHIP BUSINESS

The business decision you make:

Taking anyone & everyone who walks in the door

or

Being selective and discerning

Client Vetting

- Advance fee (when is the need for your problem-solving ability at its peak?)
- The interview process & using a questionnaire
- Social media & public data bases
- Credit report: Experian's service for lawyers

When you need to close

- Are you talking to the decision maker?
- Can you solve this problem?
- Are there contingencies?
- Ask for the work.

Sample Intake Form:

The purpose of an initial consultation is for the attorney to advise you, the prospective client what if anything, may be done for you, and what the minimum fee therefor will be. The purpose is not to render a definitive legal opinion as it may be impossible to fully assess a matter within the time frame allotted for a consultation or with the (information or documents) that you may be able to provide at the initial consultation.

One of three outcomes is possible following your consultation.

- A. You and the Attorney mutually agree to the terms of representation, or (After a separate document called an Agreement for Representation is signed a copy will be provided to you.)
- B. The Attorney declines representation, or
- C. You decide not to use the services of the Attorney.

Note: The following questions will help us to understand the reason for your visit today. Your responses are protected by attorney/client privilege and will be held in strict confidence.

Address	<hr/>
	Number	Street	City	State	Zip
Home Phone	(____) _____

Now that you have said “Yes”

- Start work in their presence
- Make sure they “see” you solving their problem
- Create a system of informing & educating that is personalized to each client

Learning how the new client found you is only part of what you need to know.

You also want to know how they processed the problem that they are bringing to you for solution.

Why is the client's problem recognition process important?

The challenging client

- Allow for sufficient time & attention
- Document the effort; (This becomes part of the client file: LEO 333)
- If you need to withdraw: Rule 1.16(b)

Real listening

How it works

Why it works

The problem we are solving has an emotional component

Client expectations

What are they?

How do we address them?

A big factor in satisfied clients who will refer new clients

Setting Boundaries

- It starts at intake & is reflected in the fee agreement
- Some client have to be trained & reminded
- Boundaries keep us professional
- The lawyer who takes no unscheduled calls

A small client can refer a big client

- Every client should feel like your most important client
- Informing & educating is essential
- Contact the client before the client contacts you

The New Client Checklist

- Am I competent & efficient?
- Is this an ideal client?
- Is this work in my Plan?
- Will the fee be reasonable now, during & at the end of the representation?
- Are expectations addressed?
- Can I finish the work?
- Will I need help?

Opportunities to make a good impression

- The appearance of the client file
- The office experience for the client
- The client's interaction with you
- Meeting them quickly using Zoom

Clients to avoid

The liar

Exquisitely angry client

Serial litigant who is pro se or has fired counsel

The unrealistic person

The person who ignores boundaries & directions

The person who does not value your effort

The person with the unsolvable problem

You are on thin ice when . . .

- You are working outside your expertise
- You are too busy or afraid to communicate
- Your office is chaos and client data is exposed
- Your invoices are inaccurate
- You have big receivables & sue to collect fees
- You take on new work just to cover overhead
- You represent friends & family for free

Evaluate your client's experience

Request our Client Satisfaction Survey Form

From PMAS@dcbar.org

Use SurveyMonkey.com

More information on Client Relations is at

Page 77, e-Manual

How to avoid a problem using a survey

When staff have significant client contact, survey the client both during and at the conclusion of the representation.

Encourage feedback about how the client is being handled.

Make sure the survey results come to you.

Here's what to ask

- What should we keep doing?
- What should we stop doing?
- What did we not do that we should do?

Own who you are.

Own where you are.

Our choice . . .

or

-to talk about the problem we

You cannot impact a feeling with a fact.

You can only impact a feeling with another feeling.

Experiences that involve little emotional intensity seem to do little to arouse focal attention and have a higher likelihood of being registered as “unimportant” and therefore of not being easily recalled later on. Events experienced with a moderate to high degree of emotional intensity seem to get labeled as “important” (probably by anatomic structures in the limbic region and closely aligned areas, such as the amygdala and orbitofrontal cortex, which are discussed in more detail later in the book) and are more easily remembered in the future.

Nobody Wants What You're Selling

Lee Rosen

People don't want legal services. They don't want intellectual property advice, disability assistance, contract drafting, employment law, an estate plan, a divorce, or whatever legal service it is that you provide.

People want the feelings the legal services give them.

They want relief, freedom, or success. Clients want to feel powerful, in control, happy, satisfied, contented. They want to walk with their head held high, their chest puffed out, and confidence in their step. Each of us wants our own particular feeling, but it's still mostly a feeling that we really want.

Why, then, do we lawyers stuff our websites, our sales pitches, and our conversations with words about the legal services we provide, instead of the feelings the clients want to buy?

The ideal client's problem recognition process

I have a Gmail account for personal use. You likely do too. And nearly every one of my clients has one. In fact, Google owns about 43% of the email market. Gmail has about 1.8 billion users and about 306 billion emails are sent and received daily in 2020.

Who cares about Gmail this much? The federal government does.

That's because people still send a lot of interesting things via email. The government wants to use those emails to build their criminal cases, particularly in white-collar cases. We think about wiretaps as electronic surveillance since they happen in real time, but gathering email is a key part of how the government investigates potential crimes.
