

GABRIELLA LEWIS-WHITE

Gabriella Lewis-White, Managing Attorney at the D.C. Bar Pro Bono Center (PBC), oversees the PBC's housing law practice. She manages the Landlord and Tenant Resource Center and eviction defense programs. Prior to joining the Pro Bono Center, Gabriella worked as a Supervising Attorney at D.C. Law Students in Court (LSIC), a clinical program which educates law students from American University, George Washington University, Georgetown University, and the University of the District of Columbia. Gabriella received her J.D. from the American University Washington College of Law and graduated summa cum laude from Hampton University. While in law school she participated in the Marshall-Brennan Constitutional Literacy Project where she educated local high school students on their first and fourth amendment rights. As a native Washingtonian, Gabriella is a passionate advocate of social, political, and economic justice in the District of Columbia.
